ARTIST STATEMENT

The richness of light in Australia and New Zealand fascinated me on arrival from Japan where the light is quite different, so much so that it inspired me to start photography.

Around sunrise and sunset anything that the rich light was touching looked beautiful to me. It was a very moving experience, visually and emotionally, to come across the quality of such light. In this environment I felt calm with contentment and awe inspired at the same time.

Capturing anything in such light was the beginning of my photography then I gradually became passionate about capturing the mood created by the different light. Sometimes I felt I was encountering something beyond the scene in front of me – something like the essence of the place. It gives me great satisfaction and pleasure when I capture my emotional experience of the scene on film. I hope this experience can be shared with those who view my work.

The landscape photographs in this exhibition are of the South Island of New Zealand, shot on film over many years. They have been exhibited in several galleries in New Zealand, as well as in Japan.
